Day 4: FEZ

Breakfast at the hotel.

The whole day is devoted to the city-sightseeing of Fez; the oldest cultural and spiritual city of Morocco. The intellectual capital, the craft work capital, the most imperial of all cities in Morocco and pearl of the Arab World, Fes is where the senses are given truly royal treatment. The Holy City of Fez is a jewel of Spanish-Arabic civilization. Fez does not reveal its secrets easily. Secretive, shadowy, they need to be discovered little by little, with reverence. Once known as "the well-guarded," Fez sits in the lap of two bare, low hills and spills beyond its ramparts onto the wide and fertile plain that stretches south to the mountains of the Middle Atlas. Bustling with artisans and merchants, its captivating sounds, fragrances and colors mesmerize the visitor with a constant swirl of activity. The city tour of Fes will include the medieval Medina with its Attarine and Bou Inania Medersas, the Nejjarine fountain, the Moulay Idriss mausoleum, and the Karaouine mosque.

The Madrasa Bou Inania was founded in AD 1351–56 by the Abu Inan Faris who also founded the Madrasa Bou Inania in Meknes. It is widely acknowledged as an excellent example of Marinid architecture. This is the only madrasa in Fes with a minaret. Opposite the main doorway of the madrasa is the entrance to the dar al-wudu (ablutions house). Left and right of the central court there are class rooms. According to history, religious leaders of the Karaouine Mosque advised Abu Inan Faris to build this madrasa. It was the last madrasa to be built by the Marinids. The madrasa became one of the most important religious institutions of Fes and Morocco, and gained the status of Grand Mosque. The madrasa is one of the few religious places in Morocco that is accessible for non-Islamic visitors. Opposite the Madrasa Bou Inania is the Dar al-Magana, a wall with a hydraulic clock that was built in relation to the madrasa.

The al-Karaouine mosque was founded by Fatima al-Fihri in 859 with an associated school, or madrasa, which subsequently became one of the leading spiritual and educational centers of the historic Muslim world. It was incorporated into Morocco's modern state university system in 1963. It is the oldest existing and continually operating educational institution in the world according to UNESCO and Guinness World Records.

The mausoleum of Zaouia Moulay Idris was built using an architectural style called Alawi during the time Moulay Ismail was alive. The mausoleum has a mosque on its grounds that are used for religious purposes and a tomb for funerals. It is mainly the local Muslim people of Fez who use the mausoleum of Zaouia Moulay Idris II, but visitors who practice the Muslim faith are also welcome. Non-Muslim visitors are not able to go see the saint's grave and the sanctuary that surrounds it or the inside of the shrine. Although this limits a lot of what you can see, the outside of the shrine is beautiful and well worth seeing.

Visit the Fez Jdid. The Fez Jdid is one of the three regions into which Fez is divided. This region is the most colorful in Fez and it always bustles with life. It is a walled expansion on the Medina and its origin can be traced back to the 14th century. It is also known as the New Fez, and was built by the Merenid rulers who required extra space for their palaces so that they could detach themselves from the hustle and bustle of Fez el-Bali.
